

NOODLE POODLES REDUCE THE COST OF HIGH LIVING

They Furnish the Family
With Trimmings for Soup
When Wanted.

Well, well!
The Vegetarian Dog Owners' Association has been obliged to postpone its Banquet, now!

The circus still has Madison Square Garden and won't give it up.
It makes no difference. Mr. J. Henry Pfiffer, secretary of the association, says he's glad of it.

Rare dogs, with which of course the secretary is perfectly familiar, have been coming to the front and there are more surprises in store for the deeply interested public. Mr. Pfiffer, even, had no idea that the rare ones were to be found in this country.

In the discussion which has been going on in The Evening World has been a wonderful education in more ways than one.

And Mr. Pfiffer says that the postponement of the banquet will have the effect of bringing out still more wonderful dogs. Every day he receives application for space.

The exploitation of the sausage variety in yesterday's issue has aroused a great deal of comment. The public generally had not known of the existence of the peripatetic panatelafoot rule of the frankfurter. It has cleared up some mystery in the manufacture of the stuffed gustatory roll.

The sausage makers are sore. Mr. Pfiffer knew all about them. He says there will be more than one at the banquet show, too.

Mr. Paul Hersel, who sculpted the banana hound from real life, has been besieged with requests for "sculpture" of that wonderful animal. The photo taken from a real life cast has sent all the doubting Thomases on the run. Some people never will learn to get on the progressive band wagon.

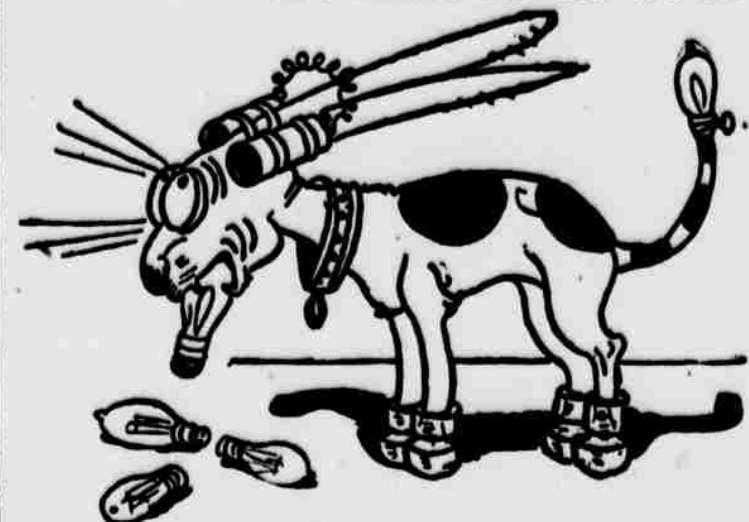

And there are more dogs to-day for the inspection and reflection of the dog-loving public. Here's the noodle poodle, with which all dog fanciers are familiar, but many doubtless never saw one in real life. And here are a few scraps from the electrical hound.

Where's your dog? Come on with him and don't be late for the banquet show.

THE NOODLE POODLE IS GOOD TO EAT.

For Rochester, April 8, 1913.
To the Editor of The Evening World:
I wish to tell you of my Noodle Poodle, a very pretty dog, full of life and very gentle with his master.

The Electrical Dog Outshines Most of the Muts on the Circuit somebody carrying a package of macaroni. Then he gets savage, and it requires a lot of care to hold him, as he is very slippery. He will snap and growl like an ostrich until the macaroni is gone.

He is a yellow dog and has long, noodle-like hair (from which I guess he gets his name) and he is very particular about what he eats. He will eat only noodle soup and don't feel contented unless he lies in a bowl of it. In this time of high cost of living he saves my wife money.

When she prepares a dinner and wants a trimming for the soup she simply calls this dog in and clips off as much of his drapery as she requires. If we have company they can tell the difference from the real thing in noodle.

When the children take him out for a long walk they sometimes get hungry, and then they take off a portion. There is only one drawback to a dog of his kind—you can't leave him out in the rain. He gets so sticky when you have to pry him loose when you want to play with him. Oh, yes; I must add that he is a good watchdog. If you hang spaghetti over the front and rear doors, then you are safe from all collectors and agents.

THE ELECTRICAL HOUND IS SHOCKING.

Ridgewood, L. I., April 8.
To the Editor of The Evening World:
Seeing the interesting account of the banana and other hounds, I would like to call attention to a remarkable hound which I have. It is a native of Ridgewood, L. I., and is known as the electrical hound. It is small in size, but very wiry. The ears look like a jack rabbit's, being long and slender. In each ear, lying close to its head, are two objects resembling dry batteries. Its eyes are very in-minous, especially at night, when they look like a headlight on the Interoceanic.

Since having the hound, we are no longer troubled with rats, as he catches and electrocutes them with his tail. He always wears glass shoes on going in the street, as his mother died from a short circuit. He likes to be carried, being very light, but my wife won't touch him, as she thinks him shocking. He lives on electric light plants. One day he ate the meter and we attached wires to his tail until we could have it replaced.

W. WHITNEY.
THIS DOG IS IN THE NATURE OF A WHAT IS IT?

To the Editor of The Evening World:

I wish to call the attention of your imaginative dog specialists to a breed of dogs not yet mentioned in your columns. This is the Philadelphia feather hound. It is a cross between a Scotch collie, a coyote and a peacock. It was originated by Jonas Scapple of Germantown in the late nineties. The resulting animal combines the severity of the collie with the beautiful foliage of the peacock and the restlessness of the coyote.

It has fine plumage in its tail, and when shut up in the home of Mr. Scapple is in a state of perpetual motion similar to that of a captive wolf. As it moves about the house its soft feathers sweep over the furniture and remove every trace of dust.

During the moult season the feathers and down are plucked and are used for ladies' hats. Mr. Scapple says it can be used as an alarm clock. Of an evening he gently but firmly tells the creature the hour at which he wishes to arise. In the morning at the exact time mentioned the intelligent animal tucks Mrs. Scapple on the nose; this causes her to sneeze and the noise wakes Mr. Scapple in time to begin his labors at the pretzel warehouse.

The hound is of a gentle, trusting disposition and makes an ideal pet for children.

We wish to enter the animal in your show.

You are not asked to believe this. We accept the burden of proof. Ours is the entire risk.

For, if any one of these garments fails to measure up to all your expectations—if your selection develops a weakness in any single direction—in style or in fabric, in fit or in wearing quality—you may exchange it for new, or get your money back.

At $13.50, $15 and $17, you may choose among these two thousand splendid $18, $20, $22.50 and $25 Spring Suits, Spring Coats and English Raincoats, as follows:

Among these same suit fabrics are pure Worsted at $13.50, which—under the present market conditions—would be excellent wholesale value at the price.

Among the Spring Overcoats are Serge and Silk-lined garments in Chesterfield, Split-sleeve and London Guard models. In plain shades of Oxford, Cambridge and Heather mixtures, and smart English Scotch and Tweed effects. Many admirably suited for motor service.

The raincoats include the finest Bradford woven Worsted and Tweed effects. Many Gaborlines among them. In convertible collar and standing collar models. All fully guaranteed to be waterproof.

With these raincoats, as with the Spring suits and Spring coats, goes the guarantee that they are full $18, $20, $22.50 and $25 values. If your experience proves otherwise, remember that you may exchange your selection for new, or get your money back.

For Every Fashion these 50 years—women have found comfort and grace in an R & G CORSET

R & G followed the abrupt lines of the crinoline lady of the Sixties. It filled the need of the bustle of the Eighties. It answers the simple call of the sinuous, graceful lines of today. We've designed so many corsets—for so many women—that no trick of line, or seam or boning escapes our artists.

We make a corset for one woman in every ten in this wide land. We make a corset that fits these women, for they buy year after year, getting automatically in each new R & G the year's subtlest, slightest change of style.

Slim women and stout women, plump women and medium women, find a corset to fit in the long line of R & G's. We don't make a corset for just one set kind of figure. We make a corset to fit every kind of figure.

The secret of a corset's fit is in its lines, purely and simply. There are no trappings, no heavy harness on R & G corsets. A swinging curve in a side seam, a diagonal abdomen seam, make all the difference in the world in your corset.

In all things worth while, there is an art. The art of corset lines, carefully studied for many years, lies back of each R & G corset.

That's why there is an R & G corset to fit you and suit you exactly. When you go to the store—look on that one. See all styles of R & G corsets till you come to the one planned by our designers to fit your particular figure.
